Who we are...

Riverine Plains Inc is an independent farmer group dedicated to improving the productivity of broadacre farming systems in north-east Victoria and southern New South Wales. Our membership is drawn from the eastern NSW–Victorian border region, known as the Riverine Plain.

Riverine Plains Inc was established in 1999 by farmers looking to improve the productivity of crop production systems. Our focus is on providing independent, timely and relevant information to our 400 plus members through a rigorous research program and our annual schedule of events and publications.

Riverine Plains Inc specialises in farmer-driven research and extension that delivers on-the-ground benefits to members. We enjoy long-term support from our members, sponsors, industry and a dedicated committee of volunteers.

Leading research...

The research capacity of Riverine Plains Inc is widely recognised across the Australian grains industry. We partner with a range of leading research and extension organisations to carry out locally-relevant, farming systems projects. This delivers meaningful, local results that address the challenges faced by our members and the wider grains community.

Sharing ideas...

Central to our philosophy of 'Farmers inspiring Farmers' is our annual events program, which includes field and machinery days, paddock walks, seminars, discussion groups and study tours. Our events bring together farmers, researchers and industry experts to share ideas, seasonal information, research results, technical experience and business expertise.

Providing quality information...

Riverine Plains Inc delivers information and research results in various formats to meet the changing needs of our members — from our annual trial book through to our bimonthly newsletters and seasonal grower bulletins, delivered on an as-needs basis throughout the growing season to support growers in managing seasonal conditions.
